Hi all,

I am writing to update you that Yaron Zussman, our CEO in the US, has spent a week in meetings on the West Coast during the second week of July.
He spent over six hours with the Google team, during which he walked them through the new features of the upcoming enterprise version. He received a positive feedback. It was mutually decided to re-engage when we finish the development of the new version, which will address most of Google's requests.
The current release date for this version is the end of 2015.

Yaron also had good meetings with Twitter, Yahoo, Oracle, and Genentech. We will launch pilots there in the near future.

The management team greatly appreciates Yaron's successful meetings on the West Coast.

Thanks,
